

Workshop: Writing a Proposal for PhD Applications and Funding

Wednesday, December 9th, 1-4pm

The School of Law at the University of Reading is hosting a workshop on Wednesday, 9 December 2009. It is designed to assist prospective Law School PhD applicants in writing research proposals for entry to doctoral programmes and for studentship funding.

This will be a small group workshop and places are limited. Up to six places will be available to candidates from across the UK. Attendees may be provided with a Workshop Award to cover or subsidise travel costs.

To apply for a place and a Workshop Award, please send a draft research proposal (400–600 words), a CV, and a short statement outlining your PhD and career plans to the Law School admissions office: law-pg-admissions@lists.reading.ac.uk. Closing date: 19 Nov 2009.

Preference may be given to applicants with interests in Media Law, Terrorism & Security (with a focus on the UK and/or Europe), Legal History, Criminal Justice & Criminology; European Law; Family Law; Medical Law; Gender & Sexuality; Race, Religion and Law.

For inquiries, contact:

Dr Lawrence McNamara
0118 378 5413
l.mcnamara@reading.ac.uk