The white horse on the shield is the emblem of the County of Kent, and the three black birds (Cornish choughs), taken from the arms of the City of Canterbury, derive from the arms of St Thomas Becket who was murdered in Canterbury Cathedral in 1170. On the crest are depicted Canterbury’s magnificent Westgate Towers, in front of which are two bishop’s croziers. The ‘supporters’ of the shield are the heraldic lions of the Cinque Ports, the five English Channel Ports lying opposite to France, four of which (Dover, Hythe, Romney and Sandwich) are in Kent.

The University’s motto, taken from the Book of Common Prayer, was translated by the 16th Century Archbishop Thomas Cranmer as ‘whose service is perfect freedom’.
Scholarships and Prizes 2015

The University records with pleasure the prizes and scholarships awarded for outstanding achievements to this year’s graduates and current students and acknowledges with appreciation the donors, past and present, who have made the awards possible. Below is a listing of the prize, award and scholarship winners for 2014/2015. If you are graduating this year and have received one of these awards this year or in previous years we congratulate you for your hard work and achievement.
