On our Hispanic Studies degree, you explore the history and culture of Spain and Spanish America. You study life after dictatorship, Spanish cinema and the iconic status of Havana and Barcelona, while learning Spanish, the second most widely spoken language in the world.

Spanish is a language of great cultural and commercial importance, which opens up many opportunities, not just in European countries but also in South and Central America. You also learn Catalan, the language of Barcelona, the Balearic Islands and Valencia.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE AND INSPIRATIONAL TEACHING

Passionate teaching
For your language modules, you are taught by staff who are native speakers of Spanish; they help you to develop all four skills – speaking, listening, reading and writing.

Alongside your language skills, you increase your understanding and knowledge of Hispanic culture, taught by lecturers whose passion for their subject is inspiring. You are encouraged to voice your opinions about political and cultural issues and are challenged to support those views with evidence gathered through your own research.

A year abroad
For your year abroad you can either study at a university in Spain, Peru, Chile or Uruguay, or work as a language assistant in a school in Spain or Latin America. You can also spend your year working in a Spanish-speaking country. For more details about your year abroad, see p13.

Supportive community
The School is welcoming and friendly, so students and staff get to know each other very quickly. SECL also houses French, German and Italian, so you become part of a community of language students, sharing interests and experiences. The close working relationships you develop with lecturers and seminar leaders help you to succeed in your studies.

Within SECL, we have a dedicated student support team, who are able to provide pastoral care and help you with your academic needs. The University also offers a variety of support services. For details see: www.kent.ac.uk/studentwellbeing or www.kent.ac.uk/studentsupport

A global outlook
Kent is known as the UK’s European university because of our UK locations close to the European mainland, and our postgraduate centres in Paris, Brussels, Athens and Rome. We also have strong links with top-ranking universities and research centres in Europe.
On campus, we have many students from mainland Europe and a high proportion of our teaching staff come from other European countries. This gives you plenty of opportunities to practise your language with native speakers and discover more about the cultures of other European countries.

The University expects all of its students to develop their studies in an international context. For Hispanic Studies, this approach is particularly appropriate. Outside Spain, Spanish is the official language of nearly all countries in South and Central America and is widespread in many parts of North America.

A successful future

As well as providing a first-rate academic experience, we want you to be in a good position to face the demands of a competitive economic environment. The ability to speak another language is a real asset in the employment market and many prospective employers value the fact that you have spent a year studying or working in another country.

We also offer an advanced language module, focusing on vocational skills such as translation and interpreting. If you are interested in going into teaching, you can gain valuable experience with our module Languages in the Classroom, where you work with local schools.

In addition, you develop the key transferable skills which are essential for a successful graduate career. For more information on the careers help we provide, go to p8 or see www.kent.ac.uk/employability or www.kent.ac.uk/secl/employability

World-leading research

In the most recent Research Excellence Framework, Kent was ranked 17th* for research intensity, outperforming 11 of the 24 Russell Group universities. Research in modern languages and linguistics was ranked 3rd for research quality and research output – a testament to our position as the UK’s European university.

Our academics are at the forefront of their fields and have expertise in cultural, political and social issues in both Spain and Latin America. Research in Hispanic Studies covers a range of areas, including: contemporary Spanish drama, film and poetry; Latin American literature, history, culture and politics; and Cuban literature, film and visual art. The School hosts many research events including conferences, seminars and lectures, which students are invited to attend and take part in.

Our Canterbury campus provides a stunning location for your studies with first-class academic and leisure facilities. The campus is within easy reach of mainland Europe and London, and it offers an excellent library and a state-of-the-art multimedia language lab.

Excellent study resources
The study resources on campus are excellent. The newly extended and refurbished Templeman Library’s extensive print and electronic collections are specifically aimed at supporting the courses and subject areas taught at Kent. To help you work and study online, we provide student PCs and Wi-Fi-enabled study hubs across the campus. IT support is available if you need it.

Kent’s Student Learning Advisory Service provides information and advice on all aspects of effective learning and study skills, and is available to all students from the time they arrive at the University. See www.kent.ac.uk/learning for more information.

International community
Kent offers an incredibly diverse campus – we have students from 158 nationalities and 42% of our academic staff come from countries outside the UK. Paris and Brussels are only two hours away by train.

Hispanic Society
Kent Union (the student union on campus) hosts a wide choice of societies catering to a range of interests. The Hispanic Society is open to anyone with an interest in Spanish or Catalan or the respective cultures. It hosts regular social, quiz and film nights. For more details, please see www.kentunion.co.uk

Beautiful green campus
Our campus has plenty of green and tranquil spaces, both lawns and wooded areas, and is set on a hill with a view of the city and Canterbury Cathedral.

The University has a reputation for being a very friendly place with a cosmopolitan environment. The Canterbury campus has its own cinema, theatre and student nightclub; there are many restaurants, cafés and bars, as well as a sports centre and gym. You can find everything you need within walking distance on campus, including a general store, a bookshop, a bank and cashpoints, a medical centre and a pharmacy. From campus, it’s a 25-minute walk or a short bus ride into town.

Attractive location
Canterbury is a lovely city with medieval buildings, lively bars and atmospheric pubs, as well as a wide range of shops. The attractive coastal town of Whitstable is close by and there are sandy beaches further down the coast. London is just under an hour away by high-speed train.
Stephen Washington is in the final year of his Hispanic Studies and History degree.

Why did you choose Kent?
Kent is the UK’s European university and that, and its high rankings for teaching quality, attracted me. Being taught well by people at the top of their game was very important to me. I also thought Canterbury, with its culture and heritage, would be a good place to live.

Why joint honours?
I couldn’t decide between history and Spanish at school, so a joint honours degree appealed to me. The two subjects work well together; my history modules give me a context for the language and cultural modules I take in Hispanic Studies.

How is the course going?
It’s going well. At first it can feel daunting, but once you get into the subject and start to do the research, it’s fascinating. I am doing my dissertation on Spanish history in the 70s and 80s looking at the King’s role in politics and I am obsessed with it! There are so many resources: I have been on the CIA website looking at recently released reports and reading contemporary newspaper articles, it is fascinating. It is amazing that we are discovering new things about this period. To be a small part of that is exciting.

Our Spanish language modules are quite intense but you can see yourself getting better as you go along; when you return from your year abroad, the improvement is amazing. For listening and interpreting, we often work in pairs, while our speaking classes usually have just five or six students, which creates a relaxed atmosphere and makes it easy to join in. There is also a list of Spanish films for us to watch to improve our understanding.

Tell us about your year abroad.
Before you go, you get a lot of help from the Erasmus team at Kent, but it can still feel a bit scary. I studied in Toledo and there were other students from Kent there, which was nice. There was also an Erasmus student network where Erasmus students from across Europe met; it felt like a mini European community.

I stayed in a house with seven other students, three Spanish, three Portuguese and a Mexican; we spoke Spanish pretty much all the time so I was totally immersed in the culture and language.

You are taught in Spanish, and study with Spanish students so it is easy to get to know people. You definitely feel that you are a part of the school.

Did studying abroad change you?
Yes, for the better I think. In the past, I would shy away from speaking, particularly in history seminars, but now I am one of the most prominent speakers. My confidence has grown, so if I have something to say I just say it, I don’t worry about it. I think I have become more open and sociable, which is a good thing.

What about the lecturers?
They are enthusiastic about their subject and that draws you in and makes you want to find out more. They are also approachable and always happy to help.

And your fellow students?
We all get along; there is a really good atmosphere. I think learning a language creates a real camaraderie.

What about the social life?
The social facilities are very good and you do feel you are a part of a community. There are lots of places to eat and drink and I honestly think there is a society for everyone. I am a member of the Football Fan Society; it’s fun to hang around with people who have a similar obsession with football.

What next?
I may do a Master’s in Spanish history but have also applied to some graduate schemes. Further in the future, I may become a teacher; the quality of the teaching at Kent has shown me how valuable teaching is and how engaging you have to be.

What advice would you give to a prospective student?
Look closely at the modules, find out about the quality of the teaching and check if the teachers’ interests are close to yours. Make sure you pick a place where you will enjoy studying and enjoy living, and you will learn a lot for the future.
Kent equips you with essential skills to give you a competitive advantage when it comes to getting a job. More than 96% of our 2016 graduates found a job or further study opportunity within six months of graduation.

A fluent command of Spanish, combined with knowledge of the cultural development of the Spanish-speaking world, opens up many opportunities not just in parts of Europe, but also in Latin America.

Wide-ranging professions

There are many career options for a linguist – the ability to speak Spanish is increasingly useful in a variety of professions across the world. Many language graduates begin their careers by working abroad.

In recent years, our graduates have found employment in translating and interpreting, teaching, marketing, journalism and publishing. Within the commercial sector, the most popular destinations are sales and export, international marketing, the travel industry (where language skills are clearly at a premium), banking and financial services (including insurance, investment analysis and tax consultancy). And, as the UK enters into negotiations with the EU, having expertise in a second language and knowledge and experience of European culture will become increasingly valuable.

Another popular choice for our language graduates is to continue on to a Master’s degree in an academic or vocational discipline, or prepare for a professional qualification in subjects such as law, accountancy, human resources, finance, librarianship or business administration. Teaching is also a career that appeals to many of our graduates – either language teaching in a British school or teaching English as a foreign language in the UK or abroad.

Master transferable skills

Studying for a degree is not just about mastering your subject area. Nowadays, employers are looking for a range of key skills and you are encouraged to develop these within your degree programme. Dealing with challenging ideas, thinking critically, the ability to write well and present your ideas clearly are important skills that you gain at Kent.

Classroom modules

The School of European Culture and Languages (SECL) has developed classroom-based modules that allow you to gain work experience in a secondary school. These modules provide you with the opportunity to combine study with work experience, so you gain credit towards your degree while working. The module gives you an insight into a teaching career while extending your experience and abilities to enhance your future work opportunities.

Please note entry on to these modules is via a selection process including an interview and a Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) check. The University currently pays for the DBS check. You may incur additional expenses through taking this module, such as the cost of travelling to your destination school. You can apply for a bursary to help you with these costs. See: www.kent.ac.uk/ces/bursarykew.html

SECL employability

SECL has its own employability events to enhance your job skills and vocational awareness during your studies. A large number of our students develop professional skills and gain hands-on experience through our wide range of paid and voluntary work opportunities. For more information on employability support within the School, see www.kent.ac.uk/secl/employability

Careers advice

Kent's award-winning Careers and Employability Service can give you advice on how to choose your future career, apply for jobs, write a good CV and perform well in interviews and aptitude tests. It also provides up-to-date information on graduate opportunities. For more details, go to www.kent.ac.uk/employability

DID YOU KNOW?

The Guardian University Guide 2018 ranked modern languages and linguistics at Kent 5th in the UK for graduate prospects.
Tanya Compas graduated with a BA (Hons) degree in Hispanic Studies in 2015. She currently works for a charity, The Change Foundation.

Why did you choose Kent?
I chose Kent because it had a great reputation.

What attracted you to the course?
I spent a gap year in Peru, learnt Spanish and fell in love with Latin American culture and tradition. I was eager to learn more about Latin American history and continue with my Spanish. The Hispanic Studies course had such a wide range of modules and being able to choose the ones that matched my interests was very appealing. The chance to spend another year abroad was the cherry on the cake!

What were the lecturers like?
Dr Natalia Sobrevilla Perea was the best educator, teacher and mentor I have ever had. It was incredibly inspiring to see someone speak with so much passion about their work. She pushed every student to strive to learn more.

Could you describe your career path since leaving Kent?
After leaving Kent, I spent three months working as a team leader with the Boys and Girls Club of San Francisco in a summer camp for disadvantaged young people. Once home, I began working for the Canadian charity WE as a speaker and facilitator, delivering programming across London schools on behalf of the Mayor of London's office. I also facilitated work in India for Canadian youth.

I now work as the Women and Girls Development Officer at The Change Foundation, which is a ‘sports for development’ charity that uses sports and mentoring to empower young people often marginalised and isolated in society.

Could you describe a typical day in your current role?
A ‘typical day’ doesn’t exist. Every day is different. I design, develop and deliver the programming for young women and girls at The Change Foundation. Each week I deliver three programmes: ‘Street Elite’ is a training for work programme for NEET young women aged 18-25 in gangs and on the edges of crime; ‘Generation Storm’ is an empowerment programme for girls aged 16-24 in care or leaving care; and ‘Street Academy’ is a prevention programme for girls aged 14-17 who are at risk of exclusion from school. My role is incredibly intensive, a lot of hard work but so rewarding.

What are your future plans?
I plan to become one of the leading figures in women and girls development in the UK and eventually internationally. I want to bring my programming to female orphanages around Latin America and Africa, empowering young women through fitness.

Do you have any other happy memories of Kent that you would like to share with us?
Working at The Venue behind the bar in second year, singing along to Taylor Swift while serving a snakebite!

Finally, what advice would you give to someone thinking of coming to Kent?
Take advantage of every opportunity. Step out of your comfort zone and don’t follow the crowd. Choose the modules you want to do, attend the events that spark your interest, join a society – make the most of your time at university; it’s gone in a flash.
Not sure which programme to choose? Here’s a quick guide to the degrees on offer.

Hispanic Studies
www.kent.ac.uk/ug/107
Hispanic Studies is a four-year single honours degree. Our range of literature, film and culture modules cover a wide variety of topics, from theatre to Spanish and Latin American film, to race and ethnicity in Latin America. In this programme, you also learn Catalan and spend a year studying or working abroad.

Joint honours
You can combine Hispanic Studies with another subject. Some are listed below with their UCAS codes, but more are available; please ask for details.

- Art History (RV43)
- Asian Studies (TR44)
- Classical & Archaeological Studies (QR84)
- Comparative Literature (QR24)
- Drama (WR44)
- English and American Literature (QR34)
- English Language and Linguistics (RQ43)
- Film (WR64)
- French (RR14)
- German (RR24)
- History (RV41)
- Italian (RR43)
- Management (NR10)
- Philosophy (RVK5)
- Religious Studies (RV46)

Our joint honours are four-year programmes with a year working or studying abroad. Study is normally divided 50:50 between your two honours subjects. To download a leaflet on your chosen joint honours subject, go to www.kent.ac.uk/courses/undergraduate/leaflets

Other degree programmes

European Studies (Spanish)
www.kent.ac.uk/ug/1387
In this degree programme, you study European society and politics, and European culture with literature or history, plus Spanish. You spend your third year studying or working abroad.

European Studies (Combined Languages)
www.kent.ac.uk/ug/125
In this programme, you study European society and politics, and European culture with literature or history, plus two European languages. You spend your third year studying or working abroad, splitting the year between two relevant countries.
Your studies are divided into three stages. Stages 1, 2 and 3. You take your year abroad between Stages 2 and 3.

There is a wide range of modules in Spanish language and Hispanic culture, including options on literature, film, history and politics.

Teaching and assessment

In your first year, you take two compulsory modules, including a language module appropriate for your level. Teaching is by a mix of lectures and seminars. You also use audio, video and computer-assisted language learning facilities.

The language modules include small group seminars, conversation classes run by a native speaker, short lectures in Spanish, work in a language laboratory and work on computer-assisted language learning materials. The culture and literature modules normally involve a weekly lecture and seminar.

Stage 1 modules in Hispanic Studies are assessed by 100% coursework (essays and class participation) in the first half of the year, and a combination of coursework and examination in the second half of the year.

For Stages 2 and 3, depending on the modules you select, assessment varies from 100% coursework (extended essays or dissertation), to a combination of examination and coursework.

Module information

Please note that the module lists below are not fixed as new modules are always in development and choices are updated yearly. Please see www.kent.ac.uk/ug for the most up-to-date information.

To read a full description of any of the modules listed, go to www.kent.ac.uk/courses/modules and search for the module code shown below.

Stage 1

Compulsory modules

If you have studied Spanish at A level you take:
- Spanish Language Level B1 (LS301).

If you have not studied Spanish at A level you take:

You take one of the following in either the autumn term or the spring term:
- Introduction to Hispanic Culture (LS312)
- Introduction to Hispanic Culture (LS313).

Optional modules

You also take at least one of the following modules:
- Introduction to Contemporary European and Hispanic Cinemas (CP318)
- State-Building in Latin America (LS319).

You supplement these by taking additional modules from elsewhere in the Faculty of Humanities in languages or a cultural subject.

CONTINUED OVERLEAF
There is also the option to start learning Catalan at this stage. Joint honours students take the required modules for their other subject.

Stage 2

Your language modules concentrate on the four skills and you have regular sessions with native speakers of Spanish.

If you took Language Levels A1-A2 Intensive, you now take the following module:
- Learning Spanish 3B: (Intensive Post-A level) (LS504).

If you took Language Level B1 at Stage 1, you now take the following module:
- Learning Spanish 4 (LS505).

Single honours students also take modules in Catalan (available as optional modules for joint honours students).

In addition, you choose at least two modules from a list of culture, literature and film options, all based in the modern period, particularly the 20th and 21st centuries. These include:
- After Dictatorship: Spain and Latin America (LS571)
- Barcelona and Havana: Icon, Myth and History (LS579)
- Catalan Culture (LS515)
- Contemporary Spanish Cinema (LS548)
- Second-Year Extended Essay (LS568)
- Spanish Literature: Identity (LS513).

You may take wild modules from elsewhere in the University, subject to requirements in Hispanic Studies being met. If you are taking a joint honours programme, you must also select the required modules for your other subject.

Year abroad

Your year abroad takes place between Stages 2 and 3. (For details, see p13.) If you are taking a joint honours programme including two languages, you split your year between two relevant countries.

You also choose at least two culture and literature modules:
- Barcelona and Havana: Icon, Myth and History (LS580)
- The Carnivalesque in Modern Spanish Theatre (LS542)
- Final-Year Dissertation (LS567)
- Languages in the Classroom (SCL502)
- Reading Monstrosity in Iberian Culture (LS550)
- Terrorism and State Terror in Latin America (LS563)
- Writing the Cuban Revolution (LS554).

At both Stages 2 and 3, it is also possible to take optional modules from elsewhere in the University. One we would recommend is:
- European Political Cinema (SCL504).

If you are taking a joint honours programme, you must also select the required modules for your other subject.

Stage 3

You focus on translating and interpreting to help perfect your language skills after a year abroad.

The final-year language module is:
- Learning Spanish 5 (LS506).

Single honours students take further Catalan modules (available as options for joint honours students).
YOUR YEAR ABROAD

The year you spend studying or working abroad enriches your university experience.

You not only improve your language skills and develop your cultural awareness, you also improve your future employment prospects.

The School has exchange agreements with several universities in Spanish-speaking countries. For details of where you can study, see the A to Z course list at: www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad/opportunities

Alternatively, you might choose to work as a language assistant in a school, or possibly in other types of employment. If you are studying Hispanic Studies with another language, you spend half of your year in Spain and half in the other country.

By studying abroad, you gain confidence and independence and further develop many of the skills employers are looking for, such as the ability to communicate effectively and to plan and organise your time. You also demonstrate that you are flexible in your outlook and have the enthusiasm and drive to succeed in a new environment.

For many Hispanic Studies students, their year abroad is a life-changing and rewarding experience. It is a time when they start to think in Spanish and begin to see things from a Spanish point of view.

Having risen to the challenge of living in another country, they have a renewed belief in their ability to succeed.

Many language students choose to live and work abroad after they graduate. If you are thinking of doing this, you can use your year abroad to discover more about your host country and its culture as well as doing research into possible career opportunities.

Advice and support
Kent’s International Partnerships team works with the School of European Culture and Languages to assist you in deciding what you want to do and where you want to go during your year abroad. It offers advice on all the practical issues you have to consider – such as destinations and finance – before you go away, keeps in touch with you while you’re away and offers support when you return. They can also put you in touch with other students who attended the university or location you are going to, so that you can get feedback directly from them.

If you choose to spend your year abroad in Spain, you may be eligible for an Erasmus grant. For more information, please visit www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad

All information is correct at the time of going to press. For the most up-to-date information, including related to Brexit, see www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad
VISIT THE UNIVERSITY

Come along for an Open Day or an Applicant Day and see for yourself what it is like to be a student at Kent.

Open Days
Kent runs Open Days during the summer and autumn. These provide an excellent opportunity for you to discover what it is like to live and study at the University. You can meet academic staff and current students, find out about our courses and attend subject talks, workshops and informal lectures. We also offer tours around the campus to view our sports facilities, the library and University accommodation.

For further information and details of how to book your place, see www.kent.ac.uk/opendays

Applicant Days
If you apply to study at Kent and we offer you a place (or invite you to attend an interview), you will usually be sent an invitation to one of our Applicant Days. You can book to attend through your online Kent Applicant Portal. The Applicant Day includes presentations in your subject area, guided tours of the campus, including University accommodation, and the opportunity to speak with both academic staff and current students about your chosen subject. For further information, see www.kent.ac.uk/visit

Informal visits
You are also welcome to make an informal visit to our campuses at any time. The University runs tours of the Canterbury and Medway campuses throughout the year for anyone who is unable to attend an Open Day or Applicant Day. It may also be possible to arrange meetings with academic staff, although we cannot guarantee this. For more details and to book your place, see www.kent.ac.uk/informal

Self-guided tours
You can explore the Canterbury campus in person or from the comfort of your home. Our self-guided audio tour gives you a real flavour of the campus and you will hear from people who help make Kent such an inspiring place to study – our staff and students. Go to www.kent.ac.uk.courses/visit/informal/audio-tour.html to get started.

Alternatively, we can provide you with a self-guided tour leaflet, which includes the main points of interest. For more details and to download a self-guided tour, go to www.kent.ac.uk/informal
