ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE AND INSPIRATIONAL TEACHING

Italy is a cornerstone of culture, art and history across Europe. Learning to speak Italian gives you the tools to enjoy Italy’s cinema and literature, assess its influence on contemporary design – from architecture to fashion and cars – analyse its politics and uncover its heritage.

The topics you study range from early 20th-century Italian literature to contemporary cinema. You also take a close look at modern Italian society and, perhaps most importantly, during your year abroad you experience life in Italy for yourself.

Italian at Kent is available as a single or joint honours degree; the full list of subjects you can study with Italian is on p10.

Excellent teaching
Studying Italian, you are taught by emerging and leading researchers in their field, whose research interests include modern Italian literature and culture, as well as the politics and thought of contemporary Italy.

The School is friendly and supportive and our students respond well to our approach. Many of the Italian teaching staff at Kent are native speakers and there are usually a number of exchange students within the School, so you have the opportunity to immerse yourself in the language.

Whether you come to Kent with an A level or GCSE in the language, or are a complete beginner, we have language modules to suit you. Many of our students come to us with no prior knowledge of Italian, but leave with the same standard of proficiency as those who came to us with an A level in the language.

A year abroad
You spend your third year studying or working in Italy. You can go on an approved work placement (possibly as an assistant teacher of English), or choose to study at an Italian university. We currently have exchange programmes with a wide range of institutions; for the current list of our partner universities, see www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad

If you are studying Italian as a joint honours in conjunction with another language, you split your year between Italy and the other relevant country. If taking Italian with a non-language subject, you spend the whole year in Italy.

Supportive community
Italian at Kent is taught within the School of European Culture and Languages (SECL), one of the largest schools in the University. The School is welcoming and friendly, so students and staff get to know each other very quickly.

SECL also houses French, German, and Hispanic Studies, so you become part of a community of language students, sharing interests and experiences. The close working
In addition to your language skills, you develop the key transferable skills, which are considered essential for a successful graduate career. For more information on the careers help we provide at Kent, please go to p8 or visit our employability web pages at www.kent.ac.uk/employability or www.kent.ac.uk/secl/employability.

World-leading research
In the most recent Research Excellence Framework, Kent was ranked 17th* for research intensity, outperforming 11 of the 24 Russell Group universities. Research in modern languages and linguistics was ranked 3rd for research quality and research output – a testament to our position as the UK’s European university.

Italian benefits from the strong research culture within the School and from being a part of the Centre for Critical Thought and the Centre for Modern European Literature, which encourage collaborative research.

A European outlook
Kent is known as the UK’s European university because of its strong links with top-ranking continental European institutions, our UK locations close to the European mainland and our postgraduate centres in Paris, Brussels, Athens and Rome. On campus, we have many students from mainland Europe and a high proportion of our teaching staff also come from other European countries. All of this gives you lots of opportunities to practise your language with native speakers and discover more about the cultures of other European countries.

A successful future
As well as providing a first-rate academic experience, we want you to be in a good position to face the demands of a competitive economic environment. The ability to speak another language is a real asset in the employment market and many prospective employers value the fact that you have spent a year studying or working in another country.

*of 122 universities, not including specialist institutions.
Superb Student Experience

Our campus at Canterbury provides a stunning location for your studies and offers first-class academic and leisure facilities. The campus is within easy reach of mainland Europe and London, and has an excellent research library as well as state-of-the-art multimedia language labs.

Excellent study resources
The study resources on campus are excellent. The newly extended and refurbished Templeman Library’s extensive print and electronic collections are specifically aimed at supporting the courses and subject areas taught at Kent. To help you work and study online, we provide student PCs and Wi-Fi-enabled study hubs across the campus. IT support is available if you need it.

Kent’s Student Learning Advisory Service provides information and advice on all aspects of effective learning and study skills, and is available to all students from the time they arrive at the University. See www.kent.ac.uk/learning for more information.

International community
Kent offers a cosmopolitan campus – 42% of our academic staff come from outside the UK and we have students representing 158 nationalities here. We also have strong links with universities and research centres in Europe.

Italian Society
Kent Union (the student union on campus) hosts a wide choice of societies catering to a range of interests. The Italian Society hosts regular socials, quizzes, debates, film nights and has even hosted a cookery night. For more details, please see www.kentunion.co.uk

Beautiful green campus
Our campus has plenty of green and tranquil spaces, both lawns and wooded areas, and is set on a hill with a view of the city and Canterbury Cathedral.

The University has a reputation for being a very friendly place with a diverse community. The Canterbury campus has its own cinema, theatre and student nightclub; there are many restaurants, cafés and bars, as well as a sports centre and gym. You can find everything you need within walking distance on campus, including a general store, a bank and cashpoints, a bookshop, a medical centre and a pharmacy. From campus, it’s a 25-minute walk or a short bus ride into town.

Attractive location
Canterbury is a lovely city with medieval buildings, lively bars and atmospheric pubs, as well as a wide range of shops. The attractive coastal town of Whitstable is close by and there are sandy beaches a little further down the coast. London is under an hour away by high-speed train.
Alice Cripps is in the second year of her Italian degree.

Why did you choose Kent?
I knew a lot of people who had been to Kent and they said great things about it. Also the grades Kent asked for were realistic for me and it wasn’t too far from where I live.

Originally, I was studying Biomedical Science but it just wasn’t for me so I switched to Italian. I am part Italian so love the culture and had enjoyed studying languages, including Italian, at GCSE so when I found out I could stay at Kent and study Italian as a ‘beginner’, I was delighted.

How is the course going?
I love going to class; I feel refreshed and I am determined to do well. I think I appreciate it more and work harder because I know how it feels when you don’t enjoy your degree. I have immersed myself in Italian, listening to the radio, watching Italian films and TV. I even changed my phone to Italian.

Do you have a favourite module?
I took a module that looked at feminism in Italy and how women are treated there. The lecturer was passionate about the subject and that caught my imagination; it changed the way I see gender in the world. I found it fascinating.

The degree allows you to take wild modules and I’ve taken advantage of that. I took Latin in my first year, which was very hard but taught me a lot about how to learn languages. This year, I am taking a module about teaching English as a foreign language, which is very interesting.

What about the lecturers?
The department is small and the lecturers know us well. They are passionate about what they do and do everything they can to make their teaching interesting and relatable. They provide us with lots of information including a really good reading list and software to help with learning Italian. Also, the Italian section in the library is very good.

And your fellow students?
I have made good friends on the course. There is quite a mix of people but we all work well together and learn from each other. In language classes I think we push each other to be better, it is always interesting to see the different ways people approach translation. With languages you never stop learning.

Kent is a very international university. You are surrounded by people from different cultures and countries so you discover a lot about the world, and about yourself.

What about the social life?
I am a member of Kent Dance. I dance and have also done some choreography. We rehearse in our own time and compete against other universities, it’s hard work but I love it and have met my best friends through it. I am a member of the committee and have organised trips, led groups and taught people.

I think these experiences have also helped to improve my academic presentations.

Where are you going for your year abroad?
I am going to Parma. I visited it in September and am in love with it already! I am lucky because one of my close friends is also going, so we are staying together. I’m very excited about going and am looking forward to studying there. Of course it’s scary too but everyone says that their year abroad was the best year of their life, so I can’t wait.

What do you want to do after graduation?
I would like to have a job that offers the opportunity to travel and allows me to use my Italian. Languages are useful in so many areas – working for Prada or Ferrari would be nice! I would also love to become fluent in French and Spanish.

What advice would you give to a prospective student?
First, study a subject you love. Then, get involved with everything, try new things and take advantage of all that’s on offer. It’s good to have an outlet, so don’t stop doing something you love that is extra-curricular – keep it up and make it work. Appreciate all your teachers do for you and speak to them if you need help.

Finally, it goes very fast so make the most of it. Try and think ahead, don’t just think about what is beneficial for you now but also about what will help you when you graduate.
Kent equips you with essential skills to give you a competitive advantage when it comes to getting a job. More than 96% of our 2016 graduates found a job or further study opportunity within six months of graduation.

The ability to speak a European language is increasingly useful in a variety of professions. When combined with a professional qualification, linguistic fluency really pays dividends. In recent years, Kent’s Italian graduates have found employment in teaching, translating and interpreting, marketing, journalism and publishing, and a variety of jobs abroad. And, as the UK enters into negotiations with the EU, having expertise in a second language and knowledge and experience of European culture will become increasingly valuable.

Wide-ranging professions

Many of our language graduates continue their studies by enrolling for postgraduate study in academic or vocational disciplines, or preparing for professional qualifications in subjects such as law, accountancy, human resources, finance, librarianship or business administration.

Another popular career is teaching; either language teaching in a British school or teaching English as a foreign language in the UK or abroad.

Within the commercial sector, the most popular destinations are sales and export, international marketing, the travel industry (where languages and skills are clearly at a premium), banking and financial services (including insurance, tax consultancy and investment analysis).

Gain transferable skills

Studying for a degree is not just about mastering your subject area. Nowadays, employers are looking for a range of transferable skills and you are encouraged to develop these within your degree. Dealing with challenging ideas, thinking critically, the ability to write well and present your ideas clearly are important skills that you gain at Kent.

Classroom modules

The School of European Culture and Languages (SECL) has developed classroom-based modules that allow you to gain work experience in a secondary school. These modules provide you with the opportunity to combine study with work experience, so you gain credit towards your degree while working. The modules offer an insight into teaching as a career option. Even if teaching is not your chosen career path, the module extends your experience, and so broadens your career options.

Please note entry on to these modules is via a selection process including an interview and a Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) check. The University currently pays for the DBS check. You may incur additional expenses through taking this module, such as the cost of travelling to your destination school. You can apply for a bursary to help you with these costs. See: www.kent.ac.uk/ces/bursarykew.html

SECL employability

SECL has its own programme of employability events to enhance your job skills and vocational awareness during your studies. A large number of our students develop professional skills and gain hands-on experience through our wide range of paid and voluntary work opportunities. For more information, see www.kent.ac.uk/secl/employability

Careers advice

Kent’s award-winning Careers and Employability Service can give you advice on how to choose your future career, apply for jobs, write a good CV and perform well in interviews and aptitude tests. It also provides up-to-date information on graduate opportunities before and after you graduate. For more information on what the Service offers, go to: www.kent.ac.uk/employability
Kerry Tyson graduated with a first-class BA (Hons) degree in Italian and Hispanic Studies in 2015. She currently teaches in a primary school in Deal.

Why did you choose Kent?
I chose Kent for a number of reasons. I live nearby and always have done, so Kent offered me a degree of comfort and closeness to home. I also knew that Canterbury was a safe and friendly city, with a good range of clubs, pubs and activity centres for socialising, with great shops and public transport. The city itself is great and I knew what I was getting.

As for the university, I did my research! I loved learning languages at school and wanted to study Spanish and Italian. Kent was incredibly high on the league tables for languages and right on my doorstep, what more could I have wanted?

Why this course?
At school, I studied French, Spanish and Italian with trips to all three countries. This gave me a passion for learning about language as well as culture, and I was good at it.

The course that Kent offered was ideal, as I was able to combine my two ability levels seamlessly; I’d studied Spanish at A level, but not Italian, so I was allowed to take Italian for beginners and Spanish post-A level alongside each other. This flexibility, as well as the extensive travel opportunities attracted me to the course.

What was your degree course like? And what about the lecturers?
My degree course was fantastic, as were the lecturers. The lecturers were native speakers and incredibly knowledgable, with some of the best experts in Latin American and Italian history, cinema and literature that education has to offer – I often found myself quoting my lecturers in assignments, because they are respected academic experts.

What about the social life?
The food at the Gulbenkian, as well as the amazing selection of cultural films and big names coming to the stage, always drew me in.

How did your degree course lay the foundations for your career?
Firstly, having a degree allowed me to take a PGCE [Postgraduate Certificate in Education]. TEFL [Teaching English as a Foreign Language] is also a great option for modern languages graduates. In addition, my degree has given me the confidence and expertise to specialise, which I may do later in my career. My options are varied and numerous; I feel very lucky to have so many doors open and not to be restricted to one career.

Could you describe your career path since leaving Kent?
After graduating, I began a full time Primary PGCE with a primary languages specialism at Canterbury Christ Church University. I chose this over secondary, but many of my colleagues are now enjoying successful secondary careers, and I know that I could teach at a higher level in the future. As it stands, I teach a Year 4 class at a primary school in Deal and help to co-ordinate French in my school.

Could you describe a typical day in your current role?
I spend my day teaching young children, I teach all subjects but specialise in languages provision. I have also introduced after school clubs in Italian and Spanish.

What are your future plans?
To co-ordinate and promote modern foreign languages in primary schools. I would like to see more children engaging with language and culture for a purpose, rather than learning a few stock French phrases. Hopefully, this will encourage a new generation of budding linguists.

What advice would you give to someone thinking of coming to Kent?
Do it! Kent is a caring community in which all staff members work to support their students. There is always someone to talk to and everyone wants you to do well. The lectures are interesting and engaging, the resources are great, and the organisation is great, with flexible hours so a study-life balance (or a study-work balance) is more than possible.
Italian can be studied either as a single honours degree or as part of a joint honours programme.

Italian

www.kent.ac.uk/courses/ug/108

Taking a single honours in Italian enables you to focus in great depth on your chosen subject. Our Italian programme covers language, literature, culture and society.

Joint honours

Joint honours are available with a wide range of subjects including:
- Art History (RV33)
- Asian Studies (TR43)
- Classical & Archaeological Studies (QR83)
- Comparative Literature (QR23)
- Drama (RW34)
- English and American Literature (QR33)
- English Language and Linguistics (RQ33)
- Film (RW36)
- French (RR13)
- German (RR23)
- Hispanic Studies (RR43)
- History (RV31)
- Management (NR13)
- Philosophy (RVH5)
- Religious Studies (RV36).

Our joint honours are four-year programmes with a year working or studying abroad. Study is normally divided 50:50 between your two honours subjects. To download a leaflet on your chosen joint honours subject, go to www.kent.ac.uk/courses/undergraduate/leaflets

Other degree programmes

European Studies (Italian)

www.kent.ac.uk/ug/1388

In this degree programme, you study European society and politics, and European culture with literature or history, plus Italian. You spend your third year studying or working in Italy.

European Studies (Combined Languages)

www.kent.ac.uk/ug/125

In this programme, you study European society and politics, and European culture with literature or history, plus two European languages. You spend your third year studying or working abroad, splitting the year between two relevant countries.
Your studies are divided into three stages. Stages 1, 2 and 3. You take your year abroad between Stages 2 and 3.

Alongside your language modules, you take modules on Italian history, politics and culture.

Teaching and assessment
Teaching is by lectures and seminars. We also make use of the technical facilities in the School: satellite TV channels, DVDs and computer-assisted language learning.

At Stage 1, Italian modules are assessed by 100% coursework.

At Stages 2 and 3, depending on the modules you select, assessment varies from 100% coursework to a combination of examination and coursework.

Module information
Please note that the module lists below are not fixed as new modules are always in development and choices are updated yearly. Please see www.kent.ac.uk/ug for the most up-to-date information.

To read a full description of any of the modules listed, go to www.kent.ac.uk/courses/modules and search for the module code shown below.

Stage 1
Language modules
If you have studied Italian at A level you take:
• Italian Language Level B1 (IT308).

If you have not studied Italian at A level you take:
• Italian Language Levels A1-A2 Intensive (IT301).

You also take the following:
• An Introduction to Italian Cinema: Neorealism and its Legacy (IT312)
• An Introduction to Italian Modernity (IT315).

Any remaining credit may be taken as wild modules from elsewhere in the University. Joint honours students take compulsory modules from their other subject; please see the respective subject leaflet for details.

Stage 2
At Stage 2, you continue taking language modules, following on from your level of learning at Stage 1. These ensure that you are well prepared for your year abroad.

If you were at beginner’s level during Stage 1, then you take:
• Learning Italian 2: Intermediate (IT508).

If you took Italian Language Level B1 at Stage 1, then you take:
• Learning Italian 4: Advanced (IT563).

Single honours students also take at least two of the following modules; joint honours students take at least one:
• Catching the Tide: Cultural Renewal in 20th-Century Italy (IT556)
• Italian Extended Essay (IT542)
• Italian Short Story (IT552).

• The Make-up: Representations of Gender in Contemporary Italy (IT576).

Any remaining credit may be taken as wild modules from elsewhere in the University. Joint honours students take compulsory modules from their chosen subjects; please see the respective subject leaflet for details.

Year abroad
Your year abroad takes place between Stages 2 and 3. (For details, see p13.) If you are taking a joint honours programme including two languages, you split your year between two relevant countries.

Stage 3
You continue to combine language learning with cultural and literary modules, and there is scope to undertake a supervised dissertation.

At Stage 3, you take the following language module:
• Learning Italian 5 (IT506).

You also choose modules from the following:
• Istantanea: Photography and Visual Culture in Modern and Contemporary Italy (IT564)
• Italian Cinema and Literature (IT548)
• Italian Regional Cinema (IT577)
• Italian Dissertation (IT503)
• Languages in the Classroom (SCL502).

At both Stages 2 and 3, it is also possible to take optional modules from elsewhere in the University. Joint honours students take compulsory modules in their other subject; please see the relevant subject leaflet for details.

“I enjoyed the Italian Short Story module and another that covered cultural renewal in 20th-century Italy. I was introduced to authors such as Calvino, whose work I really enjoyed, and Pirandello, whose work captured my interest to such an extent that I am now writing my dissertation on his work.”

YOUR YEAR ABROAD

The year you spend studying or working abroad enriches your university experience. You improve your language skills, develop your cultural awareness and improve your future employment prospects.

By studying abroad, you gain confidence and independence and further develop many of the transferable skills employers are looking for, such as the ability to communicate effectively and to plan and organise your time. You also demonstrate that you are flexible in your outlook and have the enthusiasm and drive to succeed in a new environment.

For many Italian students, their year abroad is a life-changing and rewarding experience. Having risen to the challenge of living in another country, they have a strengthened belief in their ability to succeed.

Many language students choose to live and work abroad after they graduate. If you are thinking of doing this, you can use your year abroad to discover more about your host country and its culture, as well as to research possible career opportunities.

Partner universities

Your year abroad takes place between Stages 2 and 3 of your degree. We have exchange agreements with several Italian universities. For more details of where you can study, see Kent’s A to Z course list at: www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad/opportunities

Alternatively, you might choose to work as a language assistant in a school, or possibly in other types of employment. If you are studying Italian with another language, you spend half of your year in Italy and half in the other country.

Advice and support

Kent’s International Partnerships team works with the School of European Culture and Languages to assist you in deciding what you want to do and where you want to go during your year abroad. They offer advice on all the practical issues you have to consider – such as destinations and finance – before you go away, keep in touch while you are away and offer support when you return. They can also put you in touch with students who went to the same location you are going to, so that you can get feedback from them.

If you spend your year abroad in Italy you may be eligible for an Erasmus grant. For more information, please visit www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad

All information is correct at the time of going to press. For the most up-to-date information, including any developments related to Brexit, see www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad Kealey Chapman is studying Italian and French, so split her year abroad between Italy and France.

‘I studied in Grenoble and Parma. Grenoble is a very student-focused city and there is always lots to do. Parma is a small city with beautiful architecture – living in Italy in June and July is the best thing in the world. I studied Italian history and literature and took a module teaching English to primary school children, which was great. There was an Italian language module for Erasmus students, which was a good way to meet other international students.

‘I know it’s a cliché but my year abroad definitely did change my life. Living successfully in two separate countries has given me confidence; if things go wrong now, I am more relaxed about it. I have learnt to look for enjoyment in life, to take pleasure in simple things like sitting drinking coffee in Parma, watching people go by.

‘When I arrived in Grenoble, I had to get a form signed and spent time practising what to say; I was very nervous. At the end of my stay, I went back to the same office and I wasn’t worried at all. I remember thinking that I had come full circle; it felt good.’
VISIT THE UNIVERSITY

Come along for an Open Day or an Applicant Day and see for yourself what it is like to be a student at Kent.

Open Days
Kent runs Open Days during the summer and autumn. These provide an excellent opportunity for you to discover what it is like to live and study at the University. You can meet academic staff and current students, find out about our courses and attend subject talks, workshops and informal lectures. We also offer tours around the campus to view our sports facilities, the library and University accommodation.

For further information and details of how to book your place, see www.kent.ac.uk/opendays

Applicant Days
If you apply to study at Kent and we offer you a place (or invite you to attend an interview), you will usually be sent an invitation to one of our Applicant Days. You can book to attend through your online Kent Applicant Portal. The Applicant Day includes presentations in your subject area, guided tours of the campus, including University accommodation, and the opportunity to speak with both academic staff and current students about your chosen subject. For further information, see www.kent.ac.uk/visit

Informal visits
You are also welcome to make an informal visit to our campuses at any time. The University runs tours of the Canterbury and Medway campuses throughout the year for anyone who is unable to attend an Open Day or Applicant Day. It may also be possible to arrange meetings with academic staff, although we cannot guarantee this. For more details and to book your place, see www.kent.ac.uk/informal

Self-guided tours
You can explore the Canterbury campus in person or from the comfort of your home. Our self-guided audio tour gives you a real flavour of the campus and you will hear from people who help make Kent such an inspiring place to study – our staff and students. Go to www.kent.ac.uk/courses/visit/informal/audio-tour.html to get started.

Alternatively, we can provide you with a self-guided tour leaflet, which includes the main points of interest. For more details and to download a self-guided tour, go to www.kent.ac.uk/informal
