Quotas

It is normally possible for Law students to select their modules without restriction at Registration in March. However, it may not be possible for students to change into the modules of their choice thereafter.

LW543 Clinical Option: Legal Process and Public Legal Services has a quota of 33 students at Canterbury and 10 at Medway, a ballot system is used to allocate students to this module.

Teaching Pattern

Unless otherwise indicated in the entry for particular modules, in a 30 Credit module there will normally be ten teaching weeks, one reading week and one writing week in both Autumn and Spring terms. For 15 Credit modules the pattern will be similar for the appropriate term.

Coursework

The composition of the coursework element and its percentage of the final mark are specified for each module.

Moots

In some modules, moots may be substituted for assessments. Consult the module convenor or the Director of mooting, Per Laleng.

Dissertations

It is possible to undertake an optional dissertation in some Law modules (see subject entry).

'Wild Modules'

Kent Law School encourages, where possible, students to broaden their educational experience in Stages 2 and 3 by taking advantage of the so-called 'wild modules' option. This may enable you to take up to 60 Credits from other Schools' module lists (both Social Science and Humanities) over the two years (maximum 30 Credits in each stage) – as long as the consent of the relevant School Director of Studies is obtained. You will still be awarded an LLB provided you take 180 Credits of modules from the Law List over Stages 2 and 3. You can choose out of pure intellectual interest and curiosity or you can choose by considering how such a module or modules would contribute to your career development.

QUALIFYING LAW DEGREE - ENGLAND AND WALES

A Qualifying Law Degree is a degree recognised by the Bar Standards Board and the Solicitors Regulatory Authority (the legal profession's regulatory bodies) as satisfying the academic stage of training. The Qualifying Law Degree exempts students from studying for the Common Professional Examination (CPE) which is a requirement for all other graduates seeking to qualify as solicitors or barristers. We assume that all students on law programmes wish to obtain the Qualifying Law Degree, and we therefore automatically register students for the 'core' (exemption) modules as follows:

2009/2010 Entry and beyond core exemption modules:

- LW315 Introduction to Obligations (Autumn) Must be taken with LW316
LW316 Foundations of Property (Spring) Must be taken with LW315
LW508 Criminal Law (30 Credits) OR LW601 Advanced Criminal Law (30 Credits)
LW588 Public Law 1 (30 Credits)
LW592 Public Law 2 (15 Credits) (Autumn)
LW593 European Union Law (15 Credits) (Spring)
LW597 The Law of Obligations (30 Credits)
LW598 Equity and Trusts (15 Credits) (Spring)
LW599 Land Law (15 Credits) (Autumn)

plus a further 60 Credits of Law to obtain the 240 Credits of Law needed for a Qualifying Law Degree.

Implication of failure in core modules

It is vital that you PASS ALL your exemption modules (as listed above). There are serious consequences for not achieving 40% in such a module. While the University compensation rules may permit you to progress to the next Stage, or even to pass your degree as a whole, you will still have failed an exemption module. This means that you will NOT have obtained a Qualifying Law Degree. In turn, this means that your name will not appear on the group certificate provided by the Law School to the Joint Academic Standards Board. You will have to apply on an individual basis for condonation, of the failure in that module, from the professional bodies which will only be granted in exceptional circumstances.

Number of attempts

The SRA will allow a maximum of three attempts at the exemption modules which include any attempts that are "as for the first time". If you have had three attempts and are then compensated, you will need to consult the relevant professional bodies for advice.

If you have been compensated before having three attempts and are still within your programme of study at the University, you may sit the module for exemption purposes only. However, this will not count towards your final degree classification.

If you have been compensated before having three attempts and then graduate, you may take up the offer of sitting as an external candidate at the first available opportunity at Kent, for example, if you graduate with a compensated mark in an exemption module in July 2011, the first available opportunity to sit for exemption purposes only will be in August 2011.

Time limits for a qualifying law degree

FULL TIME STUDENTS	PART TIME STUDENTS
The maximum time limit for completion of a QLD is 6 years.	Began stage 1 before September 2012 – maximum of eight years to complete a QLD.
	Began stage 1 from September 2012 onwards – maximum of six years to complete a QLD. This means that you will not be able to intermit or repeat a year and still receive a QLD.

SOLICITORS

Students who wish to become solicitors, following completion of the Qualifying Law Degree, must take the Legal Practice Course. This is the professional stage of training. Students are only eligible to proceed to the Legal Practice Course if (i) they have passed the 'core' modules and (ii) have obtained a minimum of 240 Credits of Law.

BARRISTERS

Note: Students on the Law and Economics programme will need to take and pass 30 Credits of extra-curricular Law modules in order to be able to meet the requirement for 240 Credits of Law to obtain exemption from the Common Professional Examination and be eligible to proceed to the Legal Practice Course. University regulations permit students to take up to 30 extracurricular Credits in each stage. Credit can be awarded for such modules but cannot count towards the student's programme.

Students who have not passed all 'core' modules or achieved 240 Credits of Law, may nonetheless be able to obtain professional qualification in due course by fulfilling the requirements of the legal professions' Common Professional Examination. Such students should consult the Director of Studies, Lisa Dickson, room S3W1, Eliot College, telephone: 01227 827538, email l.m.dickson@kent.ac.uk.

QUALIFICATION AS A LAWYER IN OTHER JURISDICTIONS
