CALL FOR PAPERS IIH2020

Conference: Friday 24 April 2020 (9:30am – 4:30pm)

Location: Darwin College- University of Kent, Canterbury

Join colleagues from across the sector for our second annual one-day conference, at the University of Kent, to share good practice in the fields of Internationalisation at Home and Internationalisation of the Curriculum. Explore this year's theme which is: 'The Power of Co-creation'. Share the successes and challenges from your own institutional and classroom context and pick up new strategies to develop your approach to global education.

Overview:

Building on the great success of IIH2019, we are pleased to announce our second one-day conference, at the University of Kent, to share good practice in the fields of internationalisation at home and internationalisation of the curriculum. At IIH2019 we welcomed speaker submissions from representatives from more than 18 different institutions in the UK and overseas and we look forward to extending our network at IIH2020. We welcome submissions which relate to any aspect of Internationalisation at Home or Curriculum Internationalisation and connect with our theme, this year, which is 'The Power of Co-Creation'. Presentations or workshops should focus on research or tried-and-tested good practice in globally-focused Higher Education or educational support activities. We are particularly interested in:

- Research and classroom practice which can be linked to meaningful outcomes in student experience for both home and international students
- Ventures which seek to develop intercultural awareness between home and international students
- Mechanisms for encouraging and supporting internationalisation in different academic disciplines
- Examples of embedding internationalised learning outcomes
- Internationalisation within formal and informal contexts
- Internationalisation activities which harness technology for transnational communications
- Strategies for engaging colleagues in internationalisation at home
