Why study or work abroad?

• Opportunities and challenges
• Enhance your studies
• Develop skills and attributes
• Increase your employability:
  • Students who study or work abroad are more likely to…
    – Earn a first or upper second class degree
    – Have higher employability skills
    – Be in employment or further study
    – Be in a graduate level job or earning 5% more
  …than those who don’t study or work abroad.

Applying for a Study Abroad place

• The application process will open in October 2018
• Choose from list of universities for your subject area:
  • www.kent.ac.uk/goabroad
  • Check list for availability of US universities
  • Joint honours students in Humanities can look at both subjects
• Research the university options carefully now.
  • Check the teaching language and courses offered…
  • Be pragmatic and consider all aspects: environment and climate; finance; additional support needs…
• Choose five universities that you’d be happy to go to.

If in doubt, contact goabroad@kent.ac.uk
How the allocations are made

• Stage 1 average marks
• Attendance/Academic standing
  • Senior tutor warnings and repeated non-attendance will be considered if an exchange is over-subscribed
• Suitability of exchange, taking into account
  • your subject area
  • your language skills
  • any student support needs, if applicable
• Availability of places at partner universities

Whilst every effort will be make to allocate students to their first or second choices, the University reserves the right to decide otherwise based on the suitability of the exchange or the availability of places.
