There are many ways you can showcase your research, whether it be by film, performance, photography, experiment or art.

The Kent Researchers' Showcase, taking place on Thursday 30th May in the Sibson building, is your chance to exhibit your research to an audience in an alternative, creative way. You can apply for a place by completing our online form and telling us how you would like to showcase your research and what will be involved. Apply here: bit.ly/AlternativeShowcase

There are limited spaces as well as physical space, therefore each application will be reviewed by the Graduate School.
