University of Kent Good Neighbour Statement

The University recognises that a large number of its students live off-campus in the local community. Most students residing off-campus live harmoniously with their neighbours and contribute to the local economy and philanthropic causes.

The University is committed to maintaining good relations with the local community and encourages its students to respect the neighbourhoods in which they live. Canterbury is one of the safest university cities in England and Wales and is well looked after by its residents and visitors. The University believes that as a member of the local community our students should play their part to keep it that way.

We remind our students to keep noise levels to a minimum, particularly late at night, so as not to disturb local residents. We also remind our students to ensure that their rubbish is routinely collected by the Council, and to keep their gardens clean and tidy at all times.

If our students give you any cause for concern then we would encourage you to contact the University or local Council, if appropriate.
