D5. IT skills for presentation and research

D6. The ability to research, analyse and examine a range of information

10. A synopsis of the curriculum

The module builds on the subject-specific screen & audio training from the first year. The curriculum for the final year is concerned with the application of these skills, and the preparation of the students for employment.

Students participate in classes upon which they can draw during the Devised Project, including the use of multiple technologies, creation and critical reviewing of an audio performance, and the preparation and recording of a voice reel. There are also audition practice sessions, self-taping workshops, two casting sessions and refresher Meisner classes and an introduction to video game voice performance sessions. The centre of the module is the production of short films with small ensemble casts, all professionally written, shot and edited.

The module concludes with timetabled ‘industry sessions’, including presentations and seminars by external professional practitioners.

11. Reading list (Indicative list, current at time of publication. Reading lists will be published annually)

12. Learning and teaching methods

This module comprises 270 hours of study, approximately, broken down as follows:

- 250 hours of class work including rehearsals and showings
- 20 hours of private study.

Students work with tutors in sessions that result in the production of five items of work per student: the making of one’s own film, two casting sessions, one voice reel, one radio play, and one graduation film.

All classes and workshops that centre on the teaching of skills subsequently examined through student submissions are preceded by an introductory week in autumn term, in which students recap on skills gained in Screen & Audio in the previous 1st Year.

Throughout the module, students receive formative feedback from tutors which is then used to inform the technical and artistic decision making upon which the production of the course work is based.

Throughout the module each student receives a formal individual feedback tutorial at the end of every term to discuss progress with a member of staff, and to agree individual targets for development. This tutorial draws on written reports form every class the student has taken. In addition, students receive informal feedback on solo and ensemble work throughout the module as part of LAMDA’s policy to monitor process.

13. Assessment methods

13.1 Main assessment methods

Although a student’s skills are developed through ensemble work, which includes tutor-led feedback and peer observation, the module grade is determined by assessing each individual student.

All assessment on this module is via course work, based on continuous evaluation. This results in summative feedback reports for each student at the end of each term, and an overall grade of the student’s work at the end of the module. Over the duration of the module, the student’s contribution to and performance in each series of classes or workshops results in two marks, weighted equally: one mark for process and one for performance.

- Process marks reflect students’ preparation for and approach to the work, and the extent to which they have applied professional attitudes to the acquisition of new skills or techniques.
- Performance (or attainment) marks reflect the extent to which those skills and techniques have been demonstrated

Initial assessment grading is done in accordance with the University of Kent’s assessment scheme, and its available percentage grades. The criteria applied are outlined in the LAMDA assessment form which identifies the competencies of student work according to the appropriate classifications.

First and second marking procedures follow the regulations as set out by the University of Kent.
All first marking is undertaken by the relevant class tutor or workshop director. Final public performances are also second marked by a member of academic staff. All marks are compiled for consideration and moderation at the end-of-term internal examination board meeting, which is attended by the Heads of Department and the Head of the Drama School. This results in two overall process and performance marks, which are then aggregated, to produce a single final module outcome.

15. Inclusive module design

This module is part of a primarily practice-based programme that utilises continuous assessment to measure attainment of the learning outcomes.

LAMDA recognises and has embedded the expectations of current equality legislation, by ensuring that the module is as accessible as possible by design. There is a Learning Agreement system in place to support students with disabilities and for those students who may sustain an injury – physical or vocal – whilst on the course. Reasonable adjustments are made to ensure students can achieve the learning outcomes.

Inclusive practices have been considered in order to support all students in the following areas:

a) Accessible resources and curriculum
b) Learning, teaching and assessment methods

16. Campus(es) or centre(s) where module will be delivered

LAMDA, 155 Talgarth Road, London, W14 9DA
17. Internationalisation

LAMDA auditions for students in France, Ireland and right across North America, has active partnerships with organisations in India and Hong Kong, and regularly attracts students from over fifty different countries. We have an increasingly diverse staffing body, and consistently seek to broaden the range of material we work with beyond the standard canon. Before and after graduation, students are paired with mentors in their own region of the world, and those eligible to work in the US and/or Canada are showcased to the industry in New York and Los Angeles or Toronto, as appropriate. Although our English language entry requirements are high, we have recently introduced additional support for those students whose first language is not English.

If the module is part of a programme in a Partner College or Validated Institution, please complete sections 18 and 19. If the module is not part of a programme in a Partner College or Validated Institution these sections can be deleted.
