10. A synopsis of the curriculum
    Students work with a choreographer for an intensive period of up to 4 weeks, typically rehearsing every day for 3 hours. Beyond these directed studio sessions they are expected to research the work being created or re-constructed, in their own time. They will work individually to memorise the work of the previous day, to retain notes given for ongoing reflection and to explore and develop their personal responses to it so that they are able to bring fresh and creative ideas to each new rehearsal situation, underpinned by a secure technical foundation relevant to the work in question.
Students are expected to reveal a physical intelligence that is skilfully and knowledgeably employed. They will be expected to show a mature and inquisitive approach to meet the sophisticated technical and physical requirements needed to successfully embody and present choreographed work. Further, they should demonstrate the ability to direct their own learning, by maintaining an intellectual and physical openness that ensures growth and development, both for the individual and the other participants. A full commitment to the group and the group processes is essential with complete participation in all the necessary rehearsal procedures.

Ongoing feedback from the choreographer, company director and/or rehearsal director is given during the process of devising and rehearsal, both to individuals and to the group.

Performance Modules aim to nurture mature, sensitive, knowledgeable and responsible dance artists. These students will make positive contributions to the creative processes involved in devising new work and will be capable of inhabiting a diverse range of choreographic styles with an advanced and sophisticated, expressive approach that encourages personal growth and skilful interpretation.
